Hangul full review + 20-point read & write test

After this episode you can

Read and write Hangul with the table beside you: 15 to read, 5 to write

Eight lessons. Today, we put them all together. First, one quick look at each lesson. Then a test, with the full table beside you.

Name _____ Date _____

The table is a tool

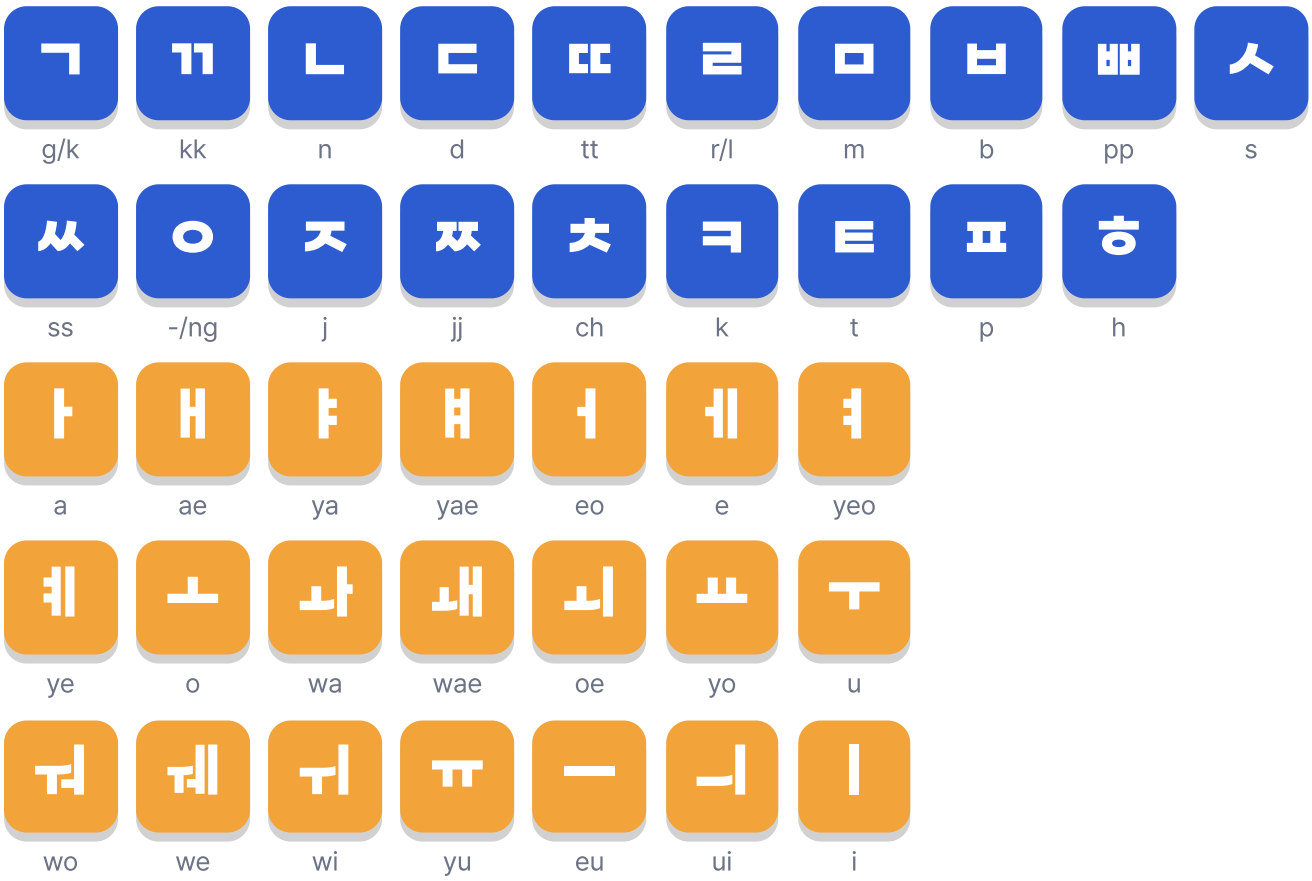

Keep the table beside you. It's not cheating. It's a tool. Find the letter, and you have the sound.

Read first, then check

Fifteen to read, five to write. Read each one before the answer, and count your score. Slow is fine.

1. All forty letters

Forty letters. That's all of Hangul. Keep this page beside you for the test.

2. Eight lessons, one line each

One line for each lesson, with a word from it.

커피	Ep.1	Lesson one: blocks. Every Korean syllable is one block, a consonant and a vowel clicked together. Shape first, then sound.
버스 · 주스	Ep.2	Lesson two: vowels that lie down. Tall vowels go beside the consonant. Flat vowels go below. Haruto read them at the bus stop.
토마토 · 야구	Ep.3	Lesson three: air and y. One extra line on a consonant adds a puff of air. One extra line on a vowel adds a y. Mateo found both at the market.
싸요 · 비싸요	Ep.4	Lesson four: the twins. The same letter, twice. Squeeze your throat, and let no air out. Haruto heard both at the fruit stand: cheap, and expensive.
물 · 김밥	Ep.5	Lesson five: bottom letters. A letter at the bottom is a brake. The sound stops there. Many letters, but only seven end sounds. That's how Emily ordered her water.
맛있어요	Ep.6	Lesson six: moving day. When the next block starts with an empty seat, the bottom letter moves in. The spelling stays. Only the sound moves. Mateo said it on moving day, with a box of kimbap.
개 · 게	Ep.7	Lesson seven: two letters, one sound. In today's Korean, these two vowels sound the same. So this is one of the few places where you learn the spelling with each word. Just ask Mateo about his coffee cup.
와플 · 회원	Ep.8	Lesson eight: two vowels, one beat. The letter draws a road for your mouth. Start on the first vowel, and slide to the second. Three of them sound alike. Say them freely. Just spell them right.

Today's shortcut. Letters are sounds.

In Korean, letters are sounds. Read the letters, and you hear the word. Learn the sounds, and you can read and write almost any word. No pronunciation guide. No memorizing.

3. Read — Stage 1: vowel blocks

Fifteen to read, five to write. Read each one before the answer, and count your score. Slow is fine. The answers are at the end. Cover them first.

오	여	와

Stage 2: sound blocks

토	꼬	뭐

Stage 3: words

이마	치마	휴지
방	입	출구

Stage 4: moving day · a sentence

옷이	월요일

저는 한국어를 읽어요.

4. Write what you hear

Now write. Write what you hear, not a spelling you memorized. Play the writing part of the video (16–20). Listen, write each word in the boxes, then check the answers.

16	17	18	19	20

Bonus: the red stamp

One more, just for fun. Read this red stamp. In Korea, teachers stamp this on kids' homework.

참 잘했어요.

Your score

Count your score. Out of twenty. What was your score? Tell me in the comments. Not confident yet? That's completely normal. Depending on your language, Hangul can take a little time to get used to. Watch lessons one to eight again — your confidence will come quickly. Stuck on something? Ask in the comments. We'll help.
